It allows city and county governments in Arkansas to form "redevelopment districts" in economically deteriorated areas in order to finance improvements in the area. The proposal also allows local governments to borrow money to pay for certain big-ticket items ..... like road-grading equipment, for example. It also limits the amount that a person's property tax could increase in a given year and prohibits a property tax increase on property owned by elderly or disabled persons. Finally, to offset the revenue that would be lost, the legislature would increase the state sales tax by 1/2 cent if this amendment passes.
